Since that night When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers arose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right He won all but four. The reverses were decision affairs. Frankle Burns and Charley Reilly scored six round decisions over the young title holder. Matty Baldwin got the decision the first time Willie essayed to go over the twenty round route, and Freddie Welch, the English champion, scored a similar victory more than a year ago. This was the bout that first brought Ritchie into the limelight. was Thanksgiving day, 1911. Welch was scheduled to box Champton Ad Wolgast, but Ad was stricken with appendicitis, and Willie, at that time little more than a sparring partner for the "good ones," became the sensation of the fight world by the amazing showing he made against Welch, a past master of the art of fisticults.

The bout made Ritchie. Emil Thiery took him on a tour of the east. He made a big hit wherever he boxed, and finally made such a name for himself that the fight public demanded that Ad Wolgast give the boy a chance in a championship bout was staged the following Thanksgiv-ing. And Wolgast, after being clearly outpointed, was disqualified in the sixteenth round for fouling.

RITCHIE KNOCKS OUT JOE RIVERS

By W. W. Naughton. San Francisco, July 4.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers of the southland in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the much-coveted title.

TWO GAMES "Big Ed" Erickson of the Salt Lake Team Pitches 22 Innings-

> Ogden dropped two eleven- inning games to Salt Lake yesterday, the first by the score of 3 to 4 and the second by a 4 to 5 score.

Sinclair and Ballinger

Pitch For the Locals

The three pitchers were stars. Erickson for Salt Lake pitched the entire 22 innings and in addition clouted out two home runs and a single that brought in one run. Sinclair and Ballinger used their heads as well as their arms.

Risberg on short and Woolums on first for Ogden played big league ball. In the first game Risberg handled four assists and put out three men without an error, Woolums had eight putouts and two assists without a workle. In the second Risberg as wobble. In the second, Risberg's assists were nine with two putouts, making a total of 18 chances without a boot. Woolums in the second put out 11 and assisted twice.

There is no telling how long the second game would have lasted had It was all Rivers in the second, and it was returned to Pourroy cutthird and fourth rounds. Then Rit-ting off the runner.
